

Pure Sports

This class is a great way to build confidence, engagement and focus in challenging and distracting environments.

We will explore various training exercises that will all help build reliable recalls, loose lead walking, stays amidst distractions and so much more.

Utilising a variety of exercises from several different canine sports, including rally, gundog training, hoopers and scent work, this class will really challenge your dog both mentally and physically in a really fun way!

Rally

Rally is a canine activity derived from heelwork elements of competitive obedience. However we are not teaching strict obedience. It is a game of circuits; each course is made up of a series of stations. Each one has a set exercise or pattern to perform before moving on to the next one. We start on a loose lead and progress to being off the lead.

Hoopers

Hoopers is a great low impact sport; each course consists of hoops and tunnels for the dogs to run through, barrels to run around and mats to stop on. It is a great way to help build coordination and proprioception. Our aim with these exercises is to build distance and reliability.

Gundog training

Gundog training is a series of simple exercises done well. It fits really well into our circuits exercises. We will work towards the grade one test, assessed in house. This short test comprises heel work, sit and stay, recall and simple retrieves.

Scent work

Scent work The scent work element involves adding fun food and toy searches to the weekly exercises to help build confidence and problem solving skills. *

Please note that this is not a scent work class; if you would like to learn about scent detection and how to train your dog to find a specific chosen odour please ask about scent detection classes. *If you are attending scent detection training classes, you can choose to search for your chosen odour or food.

Each course is 6 weeks long with the option of returning for multiple blocks. I anticipate this course to be very popular.
